CAPITAL GOSSIP AND PROVINCIAL NEWS

Premier Greenfield Addresses University Students

Premier Greenfield was the speaker at the Sunday services of the University Y.M.C.A. at Edmonton. The large convocation hall was well filled with students, staff and townspeople. The premier's address was a splendid sound advice to the student body. Two sample of terseness, coupled with or three thoughts expressed by the Premier should go to all parts of the province:—

"What is the function of a university. Briefly it is this—to teach men and women how to live."

"Complete living cannot be a living with one's self alone. It is not enough to acquire education, you must use it, not only for yourself, but you must pass it along to others."

"I think you will understand better when I tell you that I myself have not had the privilege of a university education. Recently I spoke at a convocation. I took the occasion to say that the week before I had been walking through the halls of Toronto university. It was brought home forcibly then what it meant to a man to have a university education, and all too few of the young people of this province enjoy the opportunities and the privileges which you enjoy here today."

"There is one thing that I think should always be brought home to you students: That is, that the education and training in this university is made possible by those people who either because they can afford it, or because of some other reason, are unable to give their own children the privilege which you enjoy."

"We need men and women who will reach out beyond themselves into civic and political life. I don't know of anything which needs the grasp and understanding of trained men and women to the same extent that our public life does today. Men and women who have that ability, who have that vision, should enter public life as a duty and not shrink from it."

"My message this morning is, measure up to your opportunities. Measure up to your responsibilities. Realize your responsibilities and go out to meet them. Don't wait till responsibility is forced upon you. Make the complete life yours. I do not know of any period in history which has needed men with a clearer conception."

of that complete life than the period we are passing through today. The field today is ripe for men with a zeal for service to their fellows, and those men are all too few."

Wild Bird Sanctuaries

True sportsmen will highly commend the police and game officers operating in this province on the decision to enforce the regulations for the protection of the reserves set aside as wild bird sanctuaries. These protected stopping places for the migratory birds, on their journey from the north to the south in the fall, and from the south to the north in the spring, will do much to preserve bird life, and further the interest of clean sport. Any visitor to the national parks at Banff or Jasper knows what the protection of wild game of all kinds in the parks has meant. The visitor can get in close touch with many of nature's creatures, and observe them following the life nature intended them to lead. Bears, deer, mountain sheep, mountain goats, porcupines and the smaller animals. When the antlered deer come into your back yard and eat salt out of your hand, there is no semblance of "The Lives of the Hunted."

Gold From Upper Peace River

On Wednesday representatives of the companies operating gold dredging machines on the waters tributary to the Upper Peace River were in Edmonton with the first clean-up in the shape of two gold bricks. The operators had to overcome many difficulties in getting dredging machinery into that country. The initial results have been encouraging and will lead to larger operations. It is hoped to keep the dredge working until November 15th.

Criticizes Hazing at University

The Edmonton Women's Institute Branch tenders the following advice to University of Alberta students on the question of initiations and hazing: "Be it resolved: that the men students of the University of Alberta should eliminate all vulgarity from their hazing proceedings; and that for their rough, undignified, hoydenish introduction to University life known as initiations, the women students should substitute the practice that used to be followed by the older institutions in the East, and a series of friendly receptions be given to the freshmen by the seniors, as well as kindly and helpful advice as the occasion arises, and be it further resolved that a copy of this resolution be sent to the president of the Alberta University, to the men students, the women students, and the university club, with the earnest request that careful consideration be given to it; as we know that it expresses the strong feeling on this subject of a large majority of the parents and tax-payers of the province."

Threshing Returns

The threshing returns, on which the Department of Agriculture bases its estimates of the crop yields, are coming in very slowly to the Department. Threshermen who have finished their work should immediately make returns showing acreage threshed and the yields.

Minimum Wage Board Meetings

The itinerary of the Minimum Wage Board has been finally adopted, and the sessions are commencing at Medicine Hat on October 24th.

Industries of the province have been classified into sections representing Manufacturing, Office Employment, Hotel and Restaurant and Personal Service, Laundries, Dyeing and Cleaning and Retail trade.

The complete itinerary of the sittings of the Board is as follows: Medicine Hat, October 24th; Lethbridge, October 25th; Blairmore, October 26th; Drumheller, October 27th; Calgary, October 30th and 31st; Wetaskiwin, November 1st; Edmonton, November 2nd and 3rd.

Government Seed Cleaning Plant

Good clean seed means a great deal to the farming industry in this province. The work of the Seed branch of the Department of Agriculture to establish a seed cleaning plant at Edmonton should meet with general endorsement. The use of first-class clean seed must have a beneficial effect upon the grain growing industry similar to the influence by the use of well-bred pedigreed sires.

have responded to more would have been impracticable.

Miss Benson's vocal numbers were rendered beautifully and elicited well deserved encores.

Mr. Ridley won great applause with two old favorites, both of which were vociferously encored; and Mr. Underwood in his comedy sketch "The Village Concert" was exuberantly funny. The vocal numbers were excellently accompanied by Mrs. Ker Seymour.

The concert was under the Auspices of the Christ Church W. A. and the proceeds amounting to $93.00, went to augment the general church fund.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH

Miss Gay of Honan, China, will address the congregation at 11 a. m. on "Work in China"; and at 2.30 p. m. will address the Sunday School Children. At the evening service at 7.30 p. m. Miss Gay will assist the pastor.

"How do people live in such small flats?" inquired the visitor from the country. "Easily," replied Miss Cayenne. "No two members of the family are likely to be at home simultaneously."—Exchange.

Before the labor unions can operate industry with satisfaction to themselves, they must learn how to do it. Under their present policies they are learning how not to do it.

FAMOUS CARD SHARP DIES IN POVERTY

One of the most picturesque figures in the world of crime has come to an untimely end in Paris through suicide reports a correspondent of the Buffalo Express. Andre Ardisson was his name, and in the heyday of his career he could lay claim to being the cleverest card sharper known. Ardisson was a Frenchman who started on his life of crime with the advantage of a first-class education and an influential family, which went a long way towards assisting him to mix in a class of people where cheating at cards would never be dreamed of. The courtly manners and gentlemanly appearance, which were his by right of birth, clung to him through all the years when he had become a prince of swindlers, and relied solely on his wits for a living.

Some 30 odd years ago, when gambling at the French and Belgian holiday resorts was a good deal more sensational than it is today, Ardisson was at the height of his prosperity. Accompanied by a couple of attractive young women, whom he called his sisters, he would arrive at places like Monte Carlo, Nice, Cannes or Biarritz, and take up his quarters at the most expensive hotel in the place.

A Tremendous Scandal

While he was serving his apprenticeship, if it may be so called, he contented himself with using his beautiful sisters to entice wealthy young men to his hotel suite, where perhaps a party of seven or eight, which included the Ardisson family, would sit down at night to a game of baccarat. What between an unending supply of champagne and the Mmes. Ardisson urging them on, it was not long before the guests were betting thousands of francs at a time against the bank. Even in those days Ardisson was skilful enough to deal himself the card he wanted, and it was very rarely indeed when a big bank was in the balance that Ardisson was not the winner. Somewhere about the year 1892 he became involved in a tremendous scandal in Biarritz over the rooking of a wealthy young French Count, who had not long succeeded to an inheritance of $2,000,000.

The Count had known Ardisson when they were both cadets at the military academy of Saint Cyr, and never for a moment dreamt that his old-time brother officer had become a professional card sharper. He had known that Ardisson had gambled away the money left him by his parents, and on meeting him at Biarritz expressed great surprise. Ardisson told the Count that he had married money, and for the occasion the two beautiful sisters became his wife and sister-in-law respectively.

Harried By Police

One way and other Ardisson became so well known to the police of England, France, Germany, Belgium and Spain that when he was found staying at hotels patronized by wealthy visitors the management were warned and Ardisson would be ordered to take his departure forthwith. This limited his opportunities for working his coupes, and ultimately brought about the series of daring frauds which he contrived to work at some of the well known casinos. How this was done is a romance in itself. There would arrive at a place like Carlsbad or Nice a foreign nobleman bearing a famous title, who would be accompanied by a retinue of servants and was apparently in a very bad state of health. For a few weeks the pseudo count or baron would be seen taking the air, or the mineral waters which ever happened to be the particular medicine in that part of the world under the care of his attendants. His eyes, which always seemed to be bad, were provided with blue glasses. As time went on the distinguished guest gradually improved in health, and was eventually able to walk slowly in the local casino and take a mild, benevolent interest in the game. Then one day, his health having got still better, he would be induced by someone to sit down and take a hand at Luccarat.

To Devil's Island

The luck the count or baron, whatever he happened to be at the time, enjoyed was truly marvellous. Inside of half an hour he would win two or three thousand francs and then pass on the bank to someone else, stay for a few minutes to lose a "little" money, and then hobble off. This used to go on for some weeks, until the casino authorities took to watching him and made the little game impossible. When he discovered that the experts were on his tracks the count, otherwise Mons. Andre Ardisson, would quietly disappear, and that particular place would know him no more for two or three years. Among other things, Ardisson invented a chemin-defer slipper, by which he was enabled to pass almost any card out of the shoe to a player. One way and another this faked slipper brought Ardisson a fortune, and, incidentally, it was found among his effects in 1904 when he was arrested by the Paris police on a charge of defrauding the son of an American millionaire of 450,000 francs. The fraudulent slipper was produced in court and a demonstration given of how it was worked.

Lived Like Millionaire

Ardisson took his sentence of six years penal servitude on Devil's Isle with his customary sangfroid, although he must have known that his

TELEGRAPH NEWS TOLD IN BRIEF

ELECTION IN BRITAIN

London, October 15.—An almost immediate general election is what the political clubs read in Premier Lloyd George's great speech. "I throw myself on the people whose cause I have never betrayed," he cried in ringing tones. That is definite and precise. Not "I may throw," or "I will throw." Coming hard on the statement by Austen Chamberlain, on behalf of the Conservative coalitionists, that it is the privilege of the prime minister and of no one else to set the date of the general election, the meaning of these pregnant words is clear—Lloyd George will throw his political fortunes at once into the scales of an appeal to the people.

MOSLEMS PLEASED

London, October 14.—(Canadian Press Cable)—It is understood that telegrams received in official quarters in London indicate that an excellent feeling among the Mohammedans in India, Persia and Afghanistan as a result of the Near East agreement.

romantic career as an adventurer was at an end. When the police came to investigate Ardisson's possessions they found that in something like twenty years of crime millions of francs had passed through his bank accounts, that he was the owner of a luxurious marble villa on the Riviera, and had evidently lived as a millionaire for fifteen or twenty years past. All his money and property was realized for the benefit of the people he had defrauded. When Ardisson, then close on 60 years of age, came back from the famous penal settlement, in 1909, he was a broken and penniless man. For a year or two the once-famous criminal tried to earn a living at his old game of cardsharpping, but without success. Two or three times he fell into the hands of the police on minor charges, and eventually finished up his days as a tout for some of the dubious night houses of Montmartre. He has just died at 68 years of age, having possibly handled as much money as any criminal the world has ever known.

CLOSING ROAD

Mr. Basil Coore asks The Times to state that he is at present fencing the north-west quarter of section 3-9-27, which is crossed by the Porcupine Hills trail. The trail will in future run as surveyed along the north-west side of this land. This notice is inserted to prevent misconception or accident. 32-2tp$3.85

THE EMPRESS THEATRE CURRENT ATTRACTIONS

HUGHES ONCE MORE SETS LAUGH RECORD IN
"COME ON OVER"

Latest Goldwyn Picture Said to Equal
His Biggest Comedy Hit.
"Scratch My Back"

Rupert Hughes has duplicated the feat of writing another comedy, as fine and entertaining, in a different style, as was his "Scratch My Back."

CLAUDE VAUGHAN in "Come On Over"

The comedy hit of two seasons ago,
"Come On Over," it will be seen at the Empress Theatre for two days, beginning Wednesday next. It was produced by Goldwyn, the corporation which films all of the eminent novelist's scenarios.

Mr. Hughes has taken as his heroine a young Irish girl, Moyna Killian, who is left behind by Shan-O'Meara, when he goes to America, with the promise that he will soon send for her. But Shane has ill luck in New York, included in which is the fact that Judy Grady falls in love with him, because he has helped her to get a job for her father and induced him to promise to let liquor alone. Also, he's out of a job so much that he can't save up enough money to send for Moyna.

The girl is brought over by friends and she finds Judy and Shane planning to go to the priest's because Judy's father has consented to take the temperance pledge. Moyna thinks they are going to be married and the tantrum into which she flies keeps the comedy hitting the high spots of fun till the very end.

It is in this role that Miss Moore emerges a comedienne of parts. Her triumph is as great as it was in the role of the ungainly girl who develops into a beauty in Mr. Hughes' photoplay, "The Wall Flower." She never misses a laugh nor does she ever broaden a comedy situation into farce.

Alfred Green directed "Come On Over," in close association with the author. The cast is exceptional in every way. Ralph Graves plays the role of Shane, giving a performance comparable, in its entirely different way, to his great achievement in "Dream Street." J. Farrell Mac-Donald, Monti Collins, Harold Holland, James Marcus, Florence Drew, Mary Warren, Kathleen O'Connor and Elinor Hancock are in the cast.

"Come On Over" is the kind of photoplay that pleases everybody and wins new friends for the Theatre showing it.

NEW RUPERT HUGHES STOLEY
FITS COLLEEN MOORE EVEN
TO NAME

She is Seen as a Young Irish Girl in
"Come On Over," Newest
Goldwyn Picture

One of the most promising personalities to emerge to the fore in the screen world during the past two years is Colleen Moore, the charming, twenty-year-old actress who is featured in Goldwyn's new Rupert Hughes comedy, "Come On Over," which will be screened at the Empress Theatre for two days, beginning Wednesday next.

As Moyna Killian in "Come On Over," she shows herself a comedienne of rare ability. She was chosen for the part by Mr. Hughes and Goldwyn

"I Was Run Down"

"Body was completely covered with Boils"

"If you have ever had boils, you know how painful and annoying even one or two can be. But imagine having your whole body almost entirely covered with them! I am a watchmaker by trade, making a specialty of repairing the highest grade movements. This is probably the most trying of any mechanical work, particularly for a nervous individual like me. Working under great strain both day and night for three months,
I was almost to the point of collapse.
I was so irritable and nervous that the slightest thing would send me up in the air. If I managed to get a few hours of sleep at night I was lucky.
I had no appetite for food. I certainly was miserable. During this time boils began to appear on different parts of my body and the pain from them made life a misery. My suffering was so great at times that I felt there was nothing left for me to do but to end it all. I consulted doctors but they all told me that if I didn't give up my work and live out of doors, I would go into a decline. As I had no money I couldn't do this. In fact paying doctors' bills and buying medicines used up all the money I made. Finally in desperation, I decided that I would either kill or cure myself, so I began to study my case. I realized that I was completely run down as any one could possibly be with a bad case of nerves. What I needed was building up. After reading descriptions of different preparations, the one which appeared to be the best for me was Carnol. It has simply performed miracles for me. Four bottles have done more than months of travel abroad. I feel like a two-year old.
I sleep eight hours every night and eat three good meals a day. My skin is like a baby's, free from blemishes of any kind and I have now almost forgotten that I have ever had such things as nerves. I want everybody who is ailing to know about Carnol, because I have such faith in it I believe it will cure any human ailment."

Carnol is sold by your druggist,
and if you can conscientiously say, after you have tried it, that it hasn't done you any good, return the empty bottle to him and he will refund your money.

SOLD BY R. D. McENAY

officials because of her great hit in the featured role in Mr. Hughes' previous photoplay, "The Wall Flower."

Miss Moore has been in pictures for five years, having started at the age of fifteen in D. W. Griffith's production of "The Bad Boy," with the late Robert Harron. Before joining Goldwyn she had recently appeared in
"The Sky Pilot," "Dinty," "So Long Lettie," and with John Barrymore in
"The Lotus Eaters."

In "Come On Over" Miss Moore
more than justified the faith of the author, Goldwyn's casting director and production chiefs in her screen ability. Her two roles in Goldwyn pictures have placed her in the first rank of the younger leading women of film.

"I loved to play the part of Moyna," observed Miss Moore, after completing the picture, "because she is so unsophisticated, so absolutely natural in everything she does. Even the tantrum into which she flies when she reaches America and thinks her lover is about to be married to another girl is perfectly natural and reasonable, considering her Irish characteristics and her lack of social training."

"Mr. Hughes' characters are always intensely interesting to the player who acts them. I think the chief reason for this is that every character he puts into a picture is real and natural, not imagined to fit some necessity of the plot."

NEW FLAPPER ROLE FOR GLADYS WALTON

Quite a new sort of flapper will be introduced to local screen audiences
by "Playing With Fire," the Universal special attraction which brings Gladys Walton to the Empress Theatre next Friday and Saturday. She rules over men with the same delicate touch which draws jazz and harmony out of her Melody Shop piano, but she looks into higher things with a very insistent wonderment.

As most girls of her age, she looks for a Prince Charming. But she doesn't crave the kind that come into the Melody Shop to buy the latest sheet music. She takes their quarters with an indifference which cools their ardor. They obey her as they would a queen, and worship her over the counter. But they can't interest her.

Of course it's a practical certainty that Gladys Walton will offer something worth watching in this characterization. She has long been interpreting such roles and she does them well.

The leading man opposite her in "Playing With Fire" is Hallam Cooley.
He's the man whose manner of kissing the heroine is said to be a box office bet. Second to Miss Walton and Mr.
Cooley, Kathryn McGuire and Harold Miller work together in the portrayal of another love match which has mor-human interest to it than mere sentiment.

Elinor Hancock, Lydia Knott, Eddie Gribbon, Hayward Mack, Sydney die Gribbon, Harriet Laurel and Danny Hoy complete the cast. Dallas Fitzgerald directed it from a story by William M. Clayton and J. U. Giesy.

PLAYING WITH FIRE

Gladys Walton, who has gained more fame as a delineator of flapper figures than any other actress of the stage or screen, is the star of "Playing With Fire," the Universal film comedy drama coming on Friday and Saturday to the Empress Theatre.
Supporting her are many popular players, including Hallam Cooley, Harold Miller, Kathryn McGuire, Eddie Gribbon, Hayward Mack, Lydia Knott, Elinor Hancock and Danny Hoy. Dallas Fitzgerald directed the picture from J. U. Giesy's and William M. Clayton's story.

"How are you and your wife getting along with the servant problems old chap?"
"Swimmingly, my boy, swimmingly.
We have a couple of Finns."

ANOTHER DIE-HARD

[Aged cows frisk like young heifers after a dose of serum extracted from the glands of sows, according to a report issued by the Pennsylvania State Bureau of Animals Industry.]
Behold rejuvenated

The farmer's eldest cow—
Once superannuated,
But full of vigour now;
Cavorting in the pride of
A second youthful fling,
The tune the old cow died of
Has lost its ancient sting!

In this a pig assisted,
A common pig or sow—
Its innards were enlisted
To renovate the cow;
And full of beans and fitness
The cow at present stands
As yet another witness
To wonders worked by glands.

Who cares if in pursuing
This fashionable stunt
She's lost the knack of mooing
And now can only grunt?
Who cares if beef is taken
For pork when in the roast?
The cow has saved her bacon—
And that's what matters most.

FORTNIGHTLY CROP REPORT

About ninety percent of the threshing in the Province is completed, and the threshers' returns have commenced to come in to the Department.
Taking these first returns as a whole,
they are disappointing, and indicate that the moderate crop estimate made a few weeks ago by Dominion and Provincial offices was some what high.

From the figures before us, the estimate of 13 bushels of wheat per acre has been only reached by the averages of the southwestern section of the province. So far other sections reporting are below this figure.

The estimate of the oat yields is also shown to be too high, and the threshing returns would indicate that an average yield of 16 bushels would be about the figure. The whole wheat crop of Alberta will be much under that of the past few years. On account of drought conditions in some parts of the province in the forepart of the summer, and with prospects of a short food crop, much of the oats were cut for green feed.

The first damaging frost came to the province about the 10th of the month. This has given Alberta a particularly long crop season, with the result that in the south portion of the province, certain areas of oats sown late for green feed have matured and will be threshed. Taking advantage of continued good weather considerable fall plowing is being done.
The root and vegetable crop, not as heavy as in former years, is being harvested in good condition.

One thing indicated by the threshers' returns from all sections, is that in a season of such peculiar climatic conditions as we have had in 1922, that summer-fallowing and good farming has brought the results.

"Don't address me as 'My dear boy,' said the Brighton magistrates clerk to a voluble defendant. One recalls the classic case of Lord Broughton to whom, sitting in his club, Thackeray brought a glass of port, with the remark: 'There! Drink that up, my dear old boy!' 'I'm not old. I'm not your dear boy, and dam your port!'" said the old gentleman.

Christmas In The Old Country— Special Arrangements

A visit to the Old Country is something that a great number of people are giving thought to at this season of the year, and many have already made plans to reach their friends in time for the Christmas and New Year Season.

Canadian Pacific Steamships are desperately popular for this trip and to give extra special accommodation for those who are going overseas this season, the Canadian Pacific Railway has arranged for a special train to connect with the S. S. "Montcalm" sailing from St. John, Tuesday, December 12th. Through tourist sleepers will be operated from Edmonton at 10:00 p.m. Thursday December 7th and from Calgary at 1:35 a.m. Friday December 8th, making connection with this special train leaving Winnipeg 9:20 a.m.
December 9th.

Special tourist sleepers from Calgary, Edmonton, via regular trains will also be operated in connection with the sailings from St. John of the
S. S. "Montrose" on December 1st, S.
S. "Victorian" December 7th, S. S.
"Melita" December 9th, S. S. "Met-agama" December 15th.

All these tourist sleepers run right to the ship's side no changes, no inconvenience. They are the handy plank to the steamer. 31-32

Last Saturday, while a bunch of boys working for S. A. C. C. Company at Crow's Nest were crossing a deep and swift mountain stream on a log,
one of the boys was unfortunate enough to slip and fall in the water.
The boy was heavily loaded with survey equipment, and was in danger of drowning, when Norman L. Nevison, a Macleod boy with the party, saw his plight, and with no thought of his own danger, rushed in the water and brought the boy safely ashore. It is no doubt that Mr. Nevison's presence of mind and quick action saved the boy's life. Friends of Mr. Nevison will be glad to know that neither of the boys suffered any ill effects from the adventure.

MACLEOD POSTMASTERSHIP

It is well known that for some time a quiet agitation has been on foot in certain circles in Macleod toward the removal of R. T. McNichol from the position of postmaster. The movement is not widespread. The fact of the matter is that it originated in so-called interference by Mr. McNichol with certain bootlegging interests, and culminated in a recent poorly attended meeting of a Macleod political organization—five members being present, and three voting favorably and two adversely on a motion to recommend Mr. McNichol's removal. This recommendation was duly forwarded to Ottawa. Word has since been received here by wire that no action on the recommendation is contemplated by the federal government. In this decision the government is beyond criticism as Mr. McNichol has given universal satisfaction in the discharge of his duties as postmaster, and popular sentiment in Macleod and district amongst the majority of both Liberals and Conservatives is against his removal—and, it is of late years a recognized political tenet that government appointments should be outside the realm of politics—an efficiently built up service being considered of more importance than the passing out of such offices as emoluments to political henchmen.

POISON GAS

At the Washington conference the powers concerned—the United States, Britain, France, Italy and Japan—came to an agreement in which they pledged themselves not to use poison gas in the event of them being engaged in the war and to exert their influence to have other nations bind themselves similarly. Now we note that the matter has been discussed at the meeting of the International Law Association in session at Buenos Ayres. A committee has drawn up a proposal, which the New York Times assumes to be the work of Sir Alfred Hopkinson, and which says: "It is suggested that the manufacturers of poison gases might be forbidden entirely, and that a system of inspection might be introduced by the experts. They would have the right by international agreement to enter works where such manufacture was suspected, and report of course, under pledge of secrecy as to any other operations for industrial objects which they might see."

It has been pointed out that the Washington conference with regard to poison gas ended in a mere agreement, and that no machinery was provided to ensure that the pledge would be kept; but probably even a system of inspection such as is suggested would not make it impossible for a nation bent on making poison gas to acquire a sufficient store for its first attack upon a neighbor. Many manufacturing concerns can be changed from peaceful purposes to arsenals in a short time. There are certain normal chemical processes that might be turned almost immediately to the production of poison gas. We know that it was not long after Germany had made her first diabolical experiment upon the Canadian and French African troops before the Allies were manufacturing various kinds of poison gas in great quantities. It is believed by some persons who have visited Germany that she meditates a new war and is counting upon vast stores of poison gas to give her a swift victory.

There seems little doubt that in the near future all the civilized nations of the world will take the pledge not to use poison gas in warfare, and may agree that certain penalties should be imposed upon any violators of the agreement. It has been suggested that the use of the gas by any persons whether under orders or not, should be made a crime punishable by enemy court martial, and after the conclusion of peace by a international court with criminal jurisdiction. These penalties might well be enforced if the offender in the matter of poison gas happened to be the loser in the war. Supposing Germany had won the war, what nations would be in a position to punish her commanders for the use of poison gas? Even as the loser, how many Germans have been punished for grave offences against The Hague convention? When the world was shocked at the new devilish engine that Germany had employed, the German defence was that France had resorted to poison gas first. Similarly she defended the German invasion of France on the ground that French aviators had flown over German territory. It seems not unlikely that if in the future there should occur the calamity of another great war, with nations fighting for their very existence, and if they believed that the use of poison gas or the violation of any other article of civilized warfare would bring them victory, they would not hesitate to act, as they would argue, in self defence. It would appear to be easier to devise machinery that will make war impossible than machinery which will only make it less horrible.

SCREEN AND BAR ARE BEST PAID CALLINGS

According to calculations made in the United States, the surest and swiftest way to become wealthy is to invent something that the people want, and hang onto that patent rights. This has never been known to fail. But if one in pursuit of fortune is not of an inventive mind he can become a movie star or a lawyer for these are the most highly paid professions. Perhaps half a dozen people in the United States receive incomes of a million dollars a year from their professions, and three of these are Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks and Charlie Chaplin. Levy Mayer, of Chicago, who died recently was the chief legal representative of the packers, and it was said that he received about a million dollars a year. Max D. Steuer, said by some to be the greatest trial lawyer in the United States, admits that he receives more than a thousand dollars a day for appearance in court, and since appearances in court is less than half of his working day, it is supposed he earns in the neighborhood of a million a year. Another man in the same class is probably Samuel Untermyer, of New York. It is worth noting that the three champion earning lawyers are Jews.

These incomes are inconsiderable when compared with those of John D. Rockefeller and Henry Ford, which are supposed to be between $40,000,000 and $60,000,000 a year, with the auto magnate in the lead, but of course, these profits are the result of huge investments of capital, whereas the movie stars and the great lawyers need little capital. Perhaps the closest rival to the screen and the bar in the matter of huge earnings is the prize ring. It would not be difficult for Jack Dempsey to earn half a million dollars in a year. Recently it was reported that he had been offered a million for three fights. It is reported, however, that Dempsey's contest with Jack Kearns entitles the latter to half the champion's earnings so perhaps Kearns, rather than Dempsey, should be classified as the greatest money-maker, for he will last longer than the fighter and endure less punishment.

Leonard, the lightweight champion is expected to earn about $300,000 this year. It is supposed that Caruso earned this much or more, and that McCormack receives at least a quarter of a million dollars a year for lamenting about Ireland. These earnings, of course, include the sale of phonograph records. An opportunity to make $250,000 in a concert tempted Geraldine Farrar from grand opera, and it is said that Mary Garden could make as much if she starred a season on the concert stage. Another musical artist in a different sphere is Irving Berlin, who has received a quarter of a million dollars a year more than once. He is said to have sold two words to the United States for $50,000 apiece, the words being "Hooray, Hooray," which applied the well-known punch to his song, "My Wife's Gone to the Country." Bud Fisher, the cartoonist, is another quarter-of-a-million-dollar-a-year man, and since Bud has gone in to the horse racing business, he probably finds it little enough.

A New York surgeon, who specializes in head operations, has, according to the New York Times, received more than $300,000 in a year. Arthur Brisbane, chief editorial writer for the Hearst papers, has long been the most highly-paid journalist in the world. Ten or fifteen years ago he was supposed to receive $50,000 a year, but the evangelist says that he gives away most of what he receives. Har-

$100,000. Undoubtedly he makes as much more from the papers of which he is the owner, and from another chain of them which he manages on a profit sharing basis. Billy Sunday is supposed to earn $200,000 a year, but the evangelist says that he gives away most of what he receives. Harold Bell Wright makes more than $100,000 a year, and up to date the fruits of his pen have amounted to nearly $2,000,000. Robert Chambers, Gene Stratton Porter and Booth Tarkington are reputed to have annual incomes of $100,000.

Babe Ruth receives about $80,000 a year, which is $20,000 less than Charlie Hassam made from the sales of his pictures the year before last—his best year. Will Rogers, Irvin Cobb and Ring Lardner are reported to earn $75,000 a year, the same as Joseph P. Day, an auctioneer, and Ivy Lee, a publicity man. No actor or actress outside of the films can earn as much as $100,000 a year, the nearest approach to it being Ethel Barrymore, who spent a season in vaudeville and received $2,500 a week. The most highly paid poet in the world is not Rudyard Kipling, but Walt Mason, who is supposed to make $50,000.

COMMERCIAL FLYING

(London Daily Chronicle)

If commercial flying is really an aid to the building up of vast air armaments—and on this point expert opinion is divided—Europe perhaps could afford to postpone the development of the airways.

THE MODERN UNIVERSITY

(Sydney Bulletin, N. S. Wales)

In the essentials, however, the mission of the University is today little more than that of teaching a number of lads to earn a living in a black-coated trade. Between the old intention and the modern development there is a great gulf fixed. On the one side there is a flickering ghost of a University; on the other is a busy, overgrown trade school. It remains, therefore, to commence a new agitation for the foundation of a University in which at least as much attention will be given to the stimulation of creative thought as the present trade school gives to the providing of men with a sufficient smattering of medicine, law or what not to enable them to go into the world and really begin to learn something of their jobs. And over and above it all remains two other urgent requirements: that a large proportion of university students should be encouraged to become agriculturists or artisans, instead of briefless barristers or clientless attorneys, and that some institution for the creation of skilled plumbers, cabinet makers, etc., should be formed, with the same social and other attractions as a university. Sydney is but taken as the exemplar in this connection; the need is clamant in every state.

GOLF DE LUXE

(Westminster Gazette)

Golf in England is under the reproach of becoming a rich man's pastime, and there are clubs where one is waited upon by servants in plush; but in America one learns, they go very much beyond this in their plutocratic devotion to the game, spending dollars where we spend pennies.

IMPERIAL EXCHANGE RATE

(Singapore Free Press)

Perhaps it was not noticed that at the beginning of the year the price of rubber went up a welcome cent or two. That was principally due to the fall of the American dollar rate expressed in sterling. Realizing that fixity of exchange, or at least a very moderate fluctuation, is one of the chief factors in sound business, the eyes of those most interested in the finance side of business have been turned on the possibility of a fixed exchange for the British Empire. At the present moment the differences between buying and selling exchange with the Dominions are still very wide.

ROADS AND LOTTERIES

(Johannesburg Times)

The road requirements of South Africa as a whole merit careful study. There should be something in the nature of a programme of nationally-needed highways from which local roads could branch out to meet more distant requirements. And, of course, the question of expense would have to be taken up partly as a national question as well. Of course, the government is dead against lotteries and one scarcely likes to mention them. But a state lottery for the purpose of building two or three national roads would benefit South Africa much more than all the sending away of money for overseas lotteries which goes on at present.

IF BEER WAS RUBBER

(Hong-Kong Weekly Press)

Whilst the war was on the excellent dividends paid by Pataling Estate caused some Labour members of Parliament to turn covetous eyes thereto, and to ask questions in parliament as to whether those who had done nothing to help add to the national wealth by developing the resources of the empire overseas could not grab some of the profits made by such enterprises merely for reasons of force majeure. If it is true that Barclay, Perkins, the brewers, have declared a thousand per cent. dividend, free of tax, viz., 10 pounds on a pound share, one wonders whether this also will be brought before the Chancellor of the Exchequer. Perhaps, since Labour in England has helped in the making of this huge profit by kindly consuming the beer, etc., we shall hear no more about it. At the same time we have here another instance of how the middleman, i.e., the manufacturer, makes huge profits, whilst, with tropical products (see the opening article in our April issue) those who supply the raw materials without which these profits could not be made, have a very lean time of it. If the British public would only consume rubber, as a considerable section consumes beer, even at present high prices (for beer), what a help it would be to the rubber estates.

If United States Congressmen voted as they drank there would be no prohibition.

She was in high feather, as she had succeeded in securing a "plus four" man to take her around. "Do you like a high tee?" he inquired at the first tee. "Rather, George," was her enthusiastic reply; "let's make it sausages and bacon."

Criminal Sittings Of Supreme Court

The Criminal sittings of the Supreme Court of Alberta presided over by the Honorable Mr. Justice Walsh, opened at Macleod on Monday, at 2 o'clock p. m.

The first case on the docket was Rex vs. Joy (husband and wife) for neglecting to supply necessities of life, lack of which hastened the death of Sam Joy. Verdict—Guilty. Sentence, Mrs. Joy suspended sentence, Nick Joy sentenced to one year's imprisonment in the Lethbridge Gaol. J. W. McDonald, K. C. and A. A. McGillivray, K. C. for Crown and H. Ostlund, K. C. and Major Brown, both of Lethbridge, for the defendants.

In Rex vs. Graham charged with perjury, defendant was acquitted. This case arose out of proceedings by Ellison of Claresholm, to remove and sell certain chattels previously sold by him to defendant's wife, and re-conveyed by her to Ellison under chattel mortgage. J. L. Fawcett, L. L. B. for the crown and Joseph Hicks, Esq., for defendant.

Other cases are proceeding as we go to press, and will, with the Joy manslaughter case evidence, be fully reported next week.

Note—Full report of Joy case would have been given in this issue but for a break down on The Times linotype.

British Empire Press Comment

NICELY OCCUPIED
(London Daily Mail)

We observe that the Archbishops of Canterbury and York have recommended the use of special prayers, including prayers for all statesmen and leaders on whom great responsibility rests. It would not be amiss to pray that our own reckless statesmen may be induced to get on with the peace, and to stop spreading gunpowder about in the Near East. Their chief occupation seems to be "piling the faggots, hour by doleful hour."

NOT A SUPERMAN
(London Daily Telegraph)

Our ordinary farmers are very good masters of their trade up to a certain point. They have a sort of inherited instinct for stock and for the daily routine of the farm. But they lack the flexibility of mind which comes from education, and they are extraordinarily jealous of their neighbors and secretive as to their individual methods, which they think cannot be improved upon.

INDIA'S TRANSPORTATION SYSTEM

(The Englishman, Calcutta)

India, according to the plea of many has been too poor, too unambitious, too unenlightened and too vast in its territorial limits for the successful undertaking of an enterprise of so boundless a nature as creating a thorough network of communications. Yet India is more backward in this respect than she should be. Town dwellers generally have little notion of the extreme paucity of travel and transport facilities that still exists in the rural areas which constitute the bulk of the country. It is the merchant's agent, entrusted with the laborious task of collecting the raw materials of production in the villages, who can realize how primitive are the means of transport. The official, too, doomed to a life of travel in the districts soon acquires the same knowledge. India is still in an extremely backward stage as regards this essential aspect of modern civilization.

THE "NUTS" IN CAIRO
(Egyptian Mail)

A laudable attempt has been on view in Cairo recently to brighten male attire. It is a project that we favour but we feel that a plum-colored watered silk suit needs to be extraordinarily well-cut and worn on the right kind of a figure if the fashion is going to gain any kind of adherents. Also, a crimson tarboush did not blend. Why, by the way, should the tarboush always be red? It looks extremely well with black evening suits, but clashes horribly with many lounge suits and daytime neckties. It is up to one of our "nutty" boys to make an innovation in this matter.

Old Lady—Well, here's a dollar for you, my poor man.
Tramp—A dollar! Lord bless yer, lady; if ever there was a fallen angel, it's you.

WHAT IS YOUR LIFE?

To the preacher life's a sermon;
To the joker it's a jest;
To the miser life is money;
To the loafer life is rest.

To the lawyer life's a trial;
To the poet life's a song;
To the doctor life's a patient
That needs treatment right along.

To the soldier life's a battle;
To the teacher life's a school;
Life's a good thing to the wise one,
It's a failure to the fool.

To the man upon the engine
Life's a long and heavy grade;
It's a gamble to the gambler;
To the merchant life's a trade.

Russian Olives are not as satisfactory for a hedge as Caragana. Indeed in your locality (Provost, Alta.) I question if they will be at all hardy year in and year out. Sister Mary Morris, accompanied by Sister Mary Daniels, of Daysland, spent a very enjoyable vacation with Mr. and Mrs. J. Maloney and renewed old acquaintances after an absence of some years.

Threshing is the order of the day these beautiful Indian summer days and this week will see this immediate vicinity almost finished.

MANY BEGGARS EARN HAND- SOME INCOMES

Through some painful error on the part of the New York police they arrested a few days ago Mr. Horton A. Malone. He was charged with begging on the street, and while he was not in a position to deny the charge an investigation of his affairs showed that he had lived in luxury with his family at an hotel, maintained an automobile and a chauffeur and had money to spend in diamonds. His fortune was made in begging, and even when it was increased as the result of investments in carnival concessions he did not cease begging. Probably like other successful business men he felt that he would be lost without his congenial occupation, and unlike them he was handicapped in the matter of games, for Mr. Malone has no legs. How he lost them is not mentioned, but it certainly was not in the course of any martial pursuits. However, the charitable, when they see a legless man shabbily dressed and apparently in distress, do not investigate the cause of his misfortune. They slip him a quarter or a dime or sometimes a bill. Mr. Malone has made himself wealthy by appealing to their sympathies.

A Million Beggars

An American organization with headquarters has been formed for the purpose of conducting a nationwide campaign against beggars and vagrants who have bank accounts and are in every respect more affluent, except perhaps in the number of their limbs and organs, than the people who support them. The army of beggars is estimated to number 1,000,000, of whom 40,000 are in New York City. These mendicants in some cases have their regular quarters where they do business. Times Square after theatre hours is said to be a veritable mine for them. But the majority of them travel about to different parts of the city and to different cities. They probably have some sort of pull on the part of a brother beggar while the brother fastens to the victim the other has temporarily abandoned. The beggars are by no means all frauds, but the great majority of them, even when maimed are capable of being trained to do more useful work than they are engaged in.

Most of our readers, we suppose,

PERU-NA is a century old, and has won an honored place in homes throughout the length and breadth of the North American continent as the ideal tonic and blood purifier.

will remember the Sherlock Holmes story concerning the fraud who lived comfortably in the country on the proceeds of pennies dropped in his hat by Londoners who supposed him to be mutilated, whereas he was perfectly sound and healthy. Plenty of counterparts in real life of this character are to be found. Time and time again investigation has showed that vagrants pretending to be penniless were in possession of plenty of means. One of them incautiously begged for alms to save his life from a New York detective. The dime was given, and the detective followed the man to see him accost others. Then he arrested him. When searched he was found to have $1,517 concealed in his clothes. In July another New York street beggar was picked up with $2,000 in his possession. An Albany beggar giving his name as James Tolson had $15,000 in bills and Liberty bonds when examined at police headquarters.

The Champion Beggar

A skirted beggar asked for pennies for her starving babies, but made the mistake of asking a detective who reported, "I can see whiskers under your rouge." At the police station the beggar turned out to be a man who said that he was begging to get a nest egg for his wedding, which was to occur the next day. Thomas Campbell claims to be the world's fastest beggar, and admitted that he took in at the rate of $60 an hour in Times Square from the theatre crowds. He wore a uniform as he walked and many medals clanked on his breast as he displayed his wrist. He said he was a soldier but investigation showed that he was simply a liar who had met with his accident when he was a strike breaker.

A Beggar's Trust

Some time ago the wife of a New York magistrate saw a well dressed man piloting a blind man to a point of vantage near a subway entrance. For this apparently kind act the prosperous looking man was arrested and at his trial it was learned that he had organized a begging trust. He hired cripples and the blind at $3 a day and then turned over to him their takings which enabled him to live in luxury. On the same day that this fact came to light an Italian beggar was arrested and found to be in the possession of nearly $6,000. The police estimate that many professional beggars earn $15,000 a year, and they say that many of them are fit to be longshoremen so far as bodily health is concerned.

"Tit-Bits" has a story of a deaf bridegroom who upon being repeatedly asked the conventional question, "Do you take this woman for your lawful wife?" finally got angry and said, "Oh, I don't know. She ain't so awful. I've seen wus'n her that didn't have as much money."

DEATH OF E. E. BRADSHAW

After an illness of several months, Mr. E. E. Bradshaw, popularly known as "Bert", died at the Macleod Hospital on Saturday, Oct. 14th. The funeral service was held at 10.30 a. m. on Monday from the Holy Cross Church and was largely attended by C. P. R. boys and friends from the Macleod and Springridge districts. Mr. Bradshaw's father at Ashcroft, B. C. and his wife and four small children at Macleod, are left to mourn his loss. The late Mr. Bradshaw was a representative of a class of men all too few in this country, and rapidly disappearing. He was an expert horseman and stockman, and his proficiency in handling a six-horse team on the trail will long be remembered by those who knew him. Previous to his illness, Bert was employed as a switchman on the C. P. R. and on W. A. Day's ranch, where he had charge. Earlier than this he rode range for the Maunsell Bros. and the Knight and Watson ranchers. But wherever he worked, his employer's interests were his interest, and he was known everywhere as a "good man."

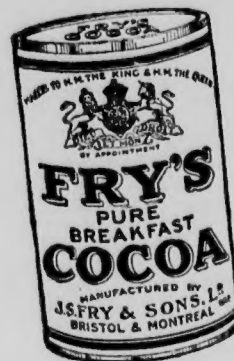

DEHORN COMMERCIAL CATTLE

A strong argument in favor of dehorning is put forward in Bulletin No. 15 of Live Stock Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. The heading adopted for the Bulletin is "Dehorn your Commercial Cattle; Cater to Higher Market Prices." It is confidently expected, say the authorities, that, for strictly economic reasons, growers and feeders of live stock will unite in a nation-wide movement, within the next twelve months, to eliminate horns from commercial cattle. Reference is made to the resolution passed at a recent live stock conference held in Western Canada urging that all such cattle should be dehorned between March 15 and April 15 or during the month of Oct. The reason for advocating the period mentioned is furnished by the fact that it is unwise to perform the operation in either extremely hot or extremely cold weather. Instances are given of actual experiments at the Dominion Experimental Farms and Stations, which prove beyond a doubt the wisdom of dehorning. It is also shown that cattle so treated invariably bring better prices and command readier sale than animals that have not been dehorned. Horns add to the cost of production and, from the calf pen to the block are a bill of expense of the producer and the feeder. They are of no economic value to the farmer, the butcher, or the exporter, but are frequently the cause of unthriftiness, discontent and injury in the feed lot and stable, result in the placing of inferior meat on the market and cause serious loss in the killing. Proof is given that it not only pays to dehorn cattle but also, if purchasing, to buy animals that have already been operated upon. The latter are more easily shipped, show less shrinkage and damage in transit and are more economical of space than horned cattle. In addition they are easier to sell and command better prices. A prominent dealer has declared that no single step or operation in the handling of cattle yields larger returns in money than the single act of dehorning.

At a conference of shipping interests in Ottawa it was pointed out that in the event that a store cattle trade is revived with Great Britain, consequent upon removal of the existing embargo, the absence of horns would be a great commercial asset to the Canadian farmer. Methods of dehorning that should be followed are

D. R. Andrew Wilson, the eminent British authority, once said of the cocoa bean—"It is a kind of vegetable egg which contains all that is needed to build up a living body." Tea and coffee are mere infusions—but cocoa is an actual food in itself. Business men should remember that.

Cocoa, made the FRY way, from the world's choicest beans, is pure, extremely soluble and of most delicious flavour. Nearly two hundred years' knowledge of the cocoa business stands back of FRY'S. Of course, remember
